overwhelmed. Questioning why am I here? I take one look at them and immediately, I am reminded of myself. With ease and assurance, I simply tell them "Welcome". I often see a sense of relief. Now that I have their trust, I simply ask, "Tell me a little about you." Most of the time the parent(s) begins to answer the question. Yes, we call it the helicopter parent. Most students sit in silence waiting for the chance to answer. Some have intriguing answers, others are reserved, and then you have the ones who are confident knowing they have invested in becoming a well-rounded student academically and socially. If I could go back and whisper to my fourteen-year-old self, I would tell myself that no one could ever stop you in life but YOU. Today I make it a point to utter those very words to every student I come in contact with. Oprah Winfrey once said, "God can dream a bigger dream than you can ever dream for yourself." Dreams are discovered while your eyes are closed, but in order to make them a reality you have to open your eyes everyday with the determination that achieving your dreams are possible. The distance between your dreams becoming a reality will seem difficult; you will experience some setbacks and failures, but I promise along your journey you will discover THE WINNER IN YOU! Here are four principles that will strategically propel you forward as you unveil your WHY in life... * Success Requires You To See Beyond Today... Don't allow today's worries to cloud your judgment of tomorrow's possibilities. Remember it is not about the fall as much as it is about your tenacity to get back up. Success requires your willingness to never give up on you, create possibilities, and embrace because some students come from other schools in the top of their class doesn't mean they are smarter than you. It simply means they are willing to sacrifice today in order to prepare for tomorrow. What that means is they are willing to miss some of the games, parties, after school activities, and hanging out - just to name a few in exchange for creating opportunities that will position them for their next level. * The Resilience To Achieve Your Full Potential... On the road to

Your full potential as an insider will encounter obstacles along the way; however, remember they are just detours/not a stop sign. What choice will you decide to make? The difference between you and someone else will be your resilience to want it more. You must answer the question: Am I willing to do the unexpected in order to pursue my dreams? It's important to put in the work today in preparation for tomorrow. * Never Give Up On You... Your determination to succeed must always outweigh your desire to give up. You must believe in yourself more than you believe in failure. Remember it is
